Every year, the University of Washington School of Law brings together students, scholars, and legal professionals from around the world. The Global Friendship Program aims to connect these foreign students, scholars, and professionals with American law students who seek to explore another legal system, share in cultural learning, and help newcomers to Seattle and the UW feel welcome. Interested individuals will be paired together based on academic interest and personal experience in a particular country or region. We ask participants to meet with their partners at least once per quarter—at a coffee shop or local restaurant for example—and to be available to answer questions by e-mail. All individuals at the School of Law, are invited to participate.
