Course Information:

Note that meetings will take place 3:30-5:00pm in MacFarlane Lounge, and we will not take a break during the session. Please plan to come ready to discuss the readings, and plan not to have a laptop or other device open during our discussion. Readings will typically be available 7-10 days beforehand, through the Canvas website.

A key part of participating in this course is emailing me Reaction Memos before class. Before our first session, and before each subsequent session, please email to me a very--very!--short written response, by 9am the night before the Colloquium. It must be no longer than 200 words. I use these reaction emails to anticipate questions and concerns the reading raises, to structure our discussion, to encourage people to speak up, and to give you a chance to practice concise legal writing. Formulate a thought or response to the readings, but keep it brief.

Schedule of Meetings:

1/15 Considering the Crises in Both Legal and Doctoral Education

(Read only the first 8 pages of the report itself)

1/29: Prof. Ryan Calo, "Robotics and the New Cyberlaw" (Draft of Work in Progress, will be posted to Canvas by 1/24)

2/12: Prof. Christopher Zambakari; Session led by Prof. Hilary Soderland

Readings: TBD

2/26: Prof. Helen Anderson, (Draft of Work in Progress)
