NEW COURSES FOR WINTER AND SPRING

Updated copies of the Winter and Spring Quarter block schedules are available online at http://www.law.washington.edu/Students/index.html. Notable additions are: Law A 564 Legal History (Winter/Spring); Law A 509 Administrative Law (Spring; in addition to the Winter section); Law A 592 Con Law II (Spring). If you are interested in these courses or making an adjustment to your schedule, please send an email to lawnews@u.washington.edu. Watch for more details.

EXAM ACCOMMODATIONS

Some students may be eligible for special arrangements for exams based on special documented conditions. The accommodations are determined by the Disabled Student Services Office. Students should contact that office if they think that they may have a condition that entitles them to an accommodation in a testing situation.

International students who have not earned a degree in a university of an English speaking country may be eligible for extra time during testing. A request form and more information is available at Academic Services, room 361. Request forms should be submitted by October 31st.

ADVANCED WRITING REQUIREMENT DEADLINE

Students must satisfy the Advanced Writing Requirement by the end of Winter quarter of their final year unless they will satisfy it in a seminar that continues into the Spring quarter of their final year. Exceptions to this rule must be approved by the Associate Dean no later than the end of Autumn quarter of the student’s third year of law school.

UW LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS INVITED TO ATTEND 11/4 SHIDLER CENTER PRACTICE FORUM

MATTHEW W. HILL SCHOLARSHIP
2003-2004 $2,600

The Matthew W. Hill Scholarship Fund was established in honor and memory of Justice Matthew Hill who was a member of the State Supreme Court from 1946 to 1969.
Justice Hill passed away at age 94 in 1989. The Scholarship Fund was established by gifts from lawyers who served as Justice Hill’s Law Clerks during his 26 years on the Supreme Court, including three who later became Justices of the Supreme Court themselves.

This scholarship is specifically restricted to the support of University of Washington School of Law students who will be second or third-year students during the 2003-2004 academic year.

Evaluation of your application will be based on your demonstrated financial need and your response to the following essay question:

Describe your involvement in civic or community activities and public service. You should discuss involvement in activities and services before or during your Law School career.

Although not required, you may also submit a letter of recommendation and a resume as part of your application.

Applications can be picked up in room 362.

Application deadline is November 26, 2003.

OUTSIDE FELLOWSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS &
WRITING CONTESTS

Copies of materials for the fellowships, scholarships & writing competitions listed below and further information is available in room 362.

King County Washington Women Lawyers
2003 Scholarship
King County Washington Women Lawyers is offering a $1,000.00 scholarship to an outstanding female student from each of our local law schools. To be eligible, you must be a 2L or 3L in good standing at the University of Washington,
School of Law. KCWWL wishes to promote individualism and courage within the profession. The purpose of the scholarship is to recognize women who have made a significant contribution to the community or have overcome great obstacles, including financial, in their lives. Applications must be received on or before November 20, 2003. Applications received after November 20th will not be considered.

International Association of Defense Counsel
The IADC is pleased to announce its 2004 legal writing contest. Entries on a subject in the fields of tort law, insurance law, civil procedure, evidence or other areas of the law of practical concern to lawyers engaged in the defense or management of the defense of civil litigation. Prizes range from $500 to $2,000. Deadline for submission is April 19, 2004.

Washington State Trial Lawyers Association
The WSTLA American Justice Essay Scholarship Contest is asking for topics that deal with advocacy in the American justice system and related topics. A prize of $3,000 will go to a student attending a School of Law in Washington State. Postmarked deadline is March 15, 2004.

Alliance Defense Fund
The Alliance Defense Fund is sponsoring the 7th annual William Pew Religious Freedom Scholarship Competition. Prizes range from $500 to $5,000. Postmarked deadline is April 1, 2004.

JAMES B. BOSKEY DISPUTE RESOLUTION ESSAY COMPETITION
Sponsored by the Association for Conflict Resolution and the ABA Section of Dispute Resolution

First Prize: $1000 in each of two divisions
Submission Deadline: June 1, 2004

James B. Boskey--intellectual, humanitarian, law professor, mediator--became known and beloved world-over for his publication of The Alternative Newsletter, a resource guide on ADR published quarterly. It was in its tenth year when Jim died in 1999. The publication provided a comprehensive yet very accessible window into the diverse dimensions of the ADR field. In many respects, Jim Boskey--through The Alternative Newsletter--was the voice of the ADR community.

Purpose
The purpose of the competition is to promote greater interest in and understanding of the field of dispute resolution and collaborative decision-making among students enrolled in ABA accredited law schools as well as students enrolled in graduate programs both in the United States and abroad.

Eligibility
The competition is open to:

a. Second and third year full time law students (and second through fourth year part-time students) in American Bar Association (ABA) approved law schools;

b. Master and Doctoral candidates enrolled in U.S. accredited colleges and universities;

c. Master and Doctoral candidates enrolled in graduate schools and universities located outside of the United States and recognized as schools of graduate study in their respective countries.

Employees of the ABA and ACR are ineligible to enter the competition.

Award
The first prize of $1000 will be awarded in each of the two categories: law student category and the master/doctoral category.

Submission Deadline and Competition Rules
All submissions must be made no later than June 1, 2004 to be eligible for consideration for the next round of competition. Submissions must be made in the English language. Additional competition rules, including the mailing address for the submissions, may be found at the websites of the Section of Dispute Resolution and ACR. The complete competition rules will be available at these sites by October 30, 2003.

THE MYSTERIOUS CASE OF THE DISAPPEARING BOOK

- Ever wake up in a cold sweat in the middle of the night wondering if you have overdue books at the library?
- Ever have the sinking feeling that you checked out thirteen books, but only twelve are on your shelf?
- Ever wonder just how massive your library fines really are?

Never fear... the answers are but a click away! Go to the home page of Gallagher’s online catalog (MARIAN), at http://marian.law.washington.edu/. Under the topic, Law Library Services, click on the link, View Your Library Record. You will need to key in your name and library barcode information (usually found on the back of your Husky Card). And voila! All of your mystifying Library loan questions are answered.

Book of the Week:
The Deluxe Transitive Vampire

If English grammar is your number one bugaboo, and you approach your legal writing assignments with the fear and trepidation of a five-year old gearing up for All Hallow’s Eve, then you might want to check out this time-honored and delightfully original volume which is available at two of our sister libraries on the UW campus. Even the most grammar-phobic curmudgeon is sure to be drawn to the author’s eccentric (to say the least) approach to making the conventions of English grammar entertaining as well as comprehensible.

“It is in high spirits that this opulent, rapturous, vamped-up grammar drama leaps into your lap,” the author notes in her preface. She delivers.

Using a “ménage of revolving lunatics,” Gordon weaves a loose tale of High Gothic proportions to illustrate the basic rules every student should know. Just to give you a taste, her lunatics include, among others, a wolf, a bat, a baby vampire, a lamia, a courtesan, a pizza chef, and a debutante. With illustrations that even—or especially—a lawyer could love, Gordon renders the frequently dark and dreary rules of English grammar memorable in an odd and curiously haunting way, reminiscent of the shadowy stories we sometimes weave from the headstones found in old, neglected cemeteries.

- “The lithium worked, and the mania subsided”—a simple compound sentence;
- “The hand that is languishing on the windowsill once was mine”—a restrictive adjective clause; and
- "She wrapped herself up in an enigma; there was no other way to keep warm”—a semi-colon separating independent clauses and illustrated by the painting of a nude.

Edgar Allen Poe warned that, “The true genius shudders at incompleteness . . . and usually prefers silence to saying something which is not every thing it should be.” While true genius is not a prerequisite to everyday legal writing, the use of good English grammar is, and silence is frequently not an option in law school. If you are feeling a bit weak and weary in this particular field of endeavor, you might want to check out Gordon’s entrancing approach to a sometimes deeply shrouded and mystifying subject.

GALLAGHER ART WALK CONTEST CONTINUES

If you haven’t yet had taken the time for a self-guided tour of the fabulous Native American Art Collection in our new Library, stop by either the Circulation Desk or Reference Office and pick up an Art Walk packet. The instructions are easy—simply label the circles on the Floor Plan of the Library with the numbers on the Artist Key that correspond to each work.

Turn in your answers—even partially completed answers qualify—to the Circulation Desk or Reference Office before noon on Tuesday, October 28, 2003. The winner will be randomly selected from all entries, and, as usual, prior contest winners during this quarter are not eligible to win the prize.
TRICK OR TREAT!

To do justice to All Hallow’s Eve, it only seems appropriate that we scare up some spooky judicial quotations. To win the rest in a long line of fabulous Law Library Trivia Prizes, fill in the blanks in the following quotations using the correct phrase. Turn in your answers, together with your name and email address to the Reference Office by midnight on Tuesday, November 4, 2003. The winner will be randomly selected from all entries.

Good Luck!

SBA Column

Creating a Lasting Memory

Law students work hard and are generally very diligent in the work and projects that they undertake. But, as many of us who have been here for a while have noticed, many of us duplicate the work of others and will miss the opportunity to leave a lasting organization behind us when we depart. As part of the SBA projects for the year (often referred to at the four pillars), the SBA has decided to focus a great deal of energy on organizational development.

The Organizational Development project for the SBA will focus on institutional memory and SBA organizational legitimacy and strength. The group heading this campaign will be directed by Patrick McKenna and Alena Ciecko. The committee has provided me with a rough draft of its plans for the year and a final explanation of the campaign should be ready in the SBA office by the end of October. Specifically, we will all work on:

• Re-evaluating the projects SBA takes on and discerning if some of these activities should be handled by paid-administrators;
• Establishing clear guidelines for project reports and filing systems to provide a fair view of officer’s work;
• Hiring interns and considering the creation of an annual intern program from the undergraduate institution to decrease the work-load on law students;
• Arguing for a stronger voice for the SBA on the Faculty Executive Committee and the Foundation Board;
• Improving communication and relations with graduate students across the campus to find more varied resources;
• Examining the structure and dictates of the SBA constitution; and
• Exploring the ways that the SBA can gather and disseminate information and manage the other student organizations to leave behind stronger institutions.

Obviously the list above is not exhaustive and the committee continues to work to develop a full plan, but work on many of these tasks has already begun. The SBA has already lobbied for, and was granted, the opportunity to attend the meetings of the Law School Foundation. Additionally, we have begun lobbying for the right to sit on the Faculty’s Executive committee for some issues. We have also hired two interns for the quarter.

I would encourage students to consider that organizational development, like all of the SBA’s projects for the year, can be a focus of every student this year. Every student member of a faculty committee or student organization should focus on how their work will appear to future law students. Will someone else understand the work you have done? Will that student be able to create something better than you because of the structure you have created? Have you left behind a record of what you have done? How is the voice of students becoming stronger because of what you are doing? Can you lobby to improve the role of your group in the governance of our Law School? Keeping these questions in mind will help all students leave behind an institution of which they can be proud. If we all focus on creating a better record of our work and stronger institutions for the voice of students, our Law School community will be strengthened for current and future students.

If you have any questions or concerns about organizational development please e-mail Patrick McKenna at pmckenna@u.washington.edu, Alena Ciecko, aciecko@u.washington.edu or me at mclassen@u.washington.edu.

Family Night and Time Management Coffee Hour

The Family Night and Time Management presentations were huge successes this week. Thanks should be given to the 2Ls and 3Ls that gave up their time to sit on both panels and share their thoughts and insights on “success” in law school and balancing your life. Special credit for these event should go to Alena Ciecko and Abby Daquiz who put these events together and donated a great deal of time organizing the sessions. Also Dr. Andy Benjamin, Francis Timlin and Dean Speer have all dedicated time and energy to these projects to help students improve their day-to-day management skills. Both of these presentations are part of Healthy students and healthy lawyers pillar of the SBA’s work this year.

Mark Long

As many of you know, Mark Long, the LL.M. specialist in the Career Services office, will be leaving the Law School at the end of the month. Mark always looked out for students and was willing to give of himself to improve our careers. Mark was willing to attend student committee and SBA meetings at any moment and I will remember working with Mark for part of my 2L year on the Curriculum Reform student committee. Mark could always be counted on for great insight and a caring eye. He will be missed but I hope he will remain a part of the UW community for some time to come.

Look out next week for the Halloween costume contest in the Commons. Have a great week!
